"A School with an Atmosphere of Work"

Taxation, Federal and State, is dependent upon Accounting—upon the recording and the statement of financial facts in accordance with sound Accounting principles. No business concern, no successful citizen, can at this time avoid a specific Accounting responsibility.

Accounting judgment, exercised on the basis of one's own knowledge, is an invaluable business asset. Many advantages accrue, aside from tax benefits, to the business that is directed by the Accountancy-educated man—such advantages as—

- localization of risks
- economical use of capital
- settlements on the basis of facts
- availability of funds for credit and managerial purposes

Pace Institute, in its classes—morning, late afternoon, and evening—teaches the essential principles of Accounting. All fundamental and many advanced principles are taught in one Semester—17 weeks. In later Semesters the principles are amplified and developed.

You are cordially invited to visit Pace Institute—to meet the members of its faculty—to inspect its classes. A few copies of an article, "Accounting in Relation to the Income Tax," by Homer S. Pace, C.P.A., which appeared in the New York Sun of Sunday, September 14, are available. For a distribution, copy will be sent upon application.

President Calls on Nation To Rally to the Red Cross

Our Patriotism Should Stand Test of Peace as Well as War, He Declares, and Urges Generous Response to Society's Third Membership Drive

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—President Wilson today addressed the following letter to the people of the country, appealing for support of the third Red Cross drive, which is to be held from November 2 to November 14.

"As President of the United States and as president of the American Red Cross I recommend and urge a generous response to the third Red Cross drive. It opens on November the second with the observance of Red Cross Sunday, and appropriately closes on November the eleventh, the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice.

"Twenty million adults joined the Red Cross during the war, prompted by a patriotic desire to render service to their country and to the cause for which the United States was engaged in war. Our patriotism should stand the test of peace as well as the test of war, and it is an intensely patriotic program which the Red Cross proposes, a continuation of service to our soldiers and sailors who look to it for many things, and a transference to the problems of peace at home of the experience and methods which it acquired during the war.

"It is in membership more than money contributions that the stress of the present campaign is laid, for the Red Cross seeks to associate the people in peace work throughout the land, especially in those communities where neither official nor unofficial provision has been made for adequate public health and social service.

"It is in the spirit of democracy and I venture to hope that its present time membership will exceed rather than fall below its impressive war membership.

ulating and coordinating influence and to place the energies of the organization behind all sound public health and welfare agencies.

"The American Red Cross does not propose indefinite prolongation of its relief work abroad, a policy which would lay an unjust burden upon our own people and tend to undermine the self-reliance of the peoples relieved, but there is a necessary work of completion to be performed before the American Red Cross can honorably withdraw from Europe. The Congress of the United States has imposed upon the Red Cross a continuing responsibility abroad by authorizing the Secretary of War to transfer to the American Red Cross such surplus army medical supplies and supplementary and dietary foodstuffs now in Europe as shall not be required by the army, to be used by the Red Cross to relieve the distress which continues in certain countries of Europe as a result of the war.

"To finance these operations, to conclude work which was begun during the war, and to carry out some comparatively inexpensive constructive plans for assisting peoples in Eastern Europe to develop their own welfare organizations, the American Red Cross requires, in addition to membership fees, a sum of money small in comparison with gifts poured into its treasury by our generous people during the war.

"Both the greater enduring domestic program and the lesser temporary foreign program of the Red Cross deserve enthusiastic support, and I venture to hope that its present time membership will exceed rather than fall below its impressive war membership.

Foreign Working Women Delegates at Washington

Mrs. Raymond Robins Presides at Informal Sessions of International Congress

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Delegates of four European countries to the first International Working Women's Congress held an informal gathering this morning in their hotel headquarters with Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the National Women's Trade Union League, representing the hostess organization. In another part of the city the problems of women in industry were being discussed by the sixty-five young American women assembled by the Y. W. C. A. as a preliminary to the sessions of the congress, which will begin Tuesday in the new National Museum.

The interpreters for the foreign delegates were sent down from New York through the cooperation of the Y. W. C. A. with the trade unionists. The delegates already on hand are those from France, Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia. The women from Switzerland, England and the Scandinavian countries are expected Monday.

The American Working Women's party in the present industrial struggle in this country will be represented at the congress by ten delegates chosen by the National Women's Trade Union League from various parts of the United States. Among the important conferences in Boston with officers of the telephone operators' unions from the West coast, Miss Julia O'Connor, president of the telephone operators' department of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, will be the last of the American delegates to arrive Sunday night. The others are to reach here Sunday morning. They will be Miss Agnes Nestor and Miss Elizabeth Christman, of the Chicago glove makers; Miss Rose Schneiderman, of the cap makers; Mrs. Maude Swartz, of the printers; and Miss Leonard O'Reilly, of the Women's Trade Union League, all of New York; Miss Pauline Newman, of the Philadelphia shirtwaist makers; Mrs. Sarah Green, of Kansas City, waitresses; and Miss Emma Stegman, of the Chicago boot makers.

Miss Mary Anderson, of the women's bureau of the Department of Labor; Mrs. Robins and Mrs. Lois Rantoul, of Boston, are already here.

State Prosecutor Renews Crusade On Dental Quacks

Public Urged to Report All Charlatans, With or Without Licenses, Who May Victimize Their Patients

Unscrupulous dentists, some of whom are not licensed and are preying on residents of New York, are the objects of a crusade announced yesterday by Samuel A. Berger, deputy Attorney General. The official called upon the victims of such charlatans to assist him.

"There are still unscrupulous dentists who regard their profession from but one viewpoint—to get the money," he said. "These men confine themselves to what they regard as easy work, purposely neglecting difficult treatments, extracting teeth to add to the number of bridge teeth, at a price per tooth, building bridge work upon teeth infected by pyorrhea, faking the public by advertising a low price and advancing this price with the victim's ability to pay."

"Some of these men are licensed and others are unlicensed, and really the licensed practitioners are the greater rogues of the two. The unlicensed man can be apprehended and convicted, but in the absence of evidence to indicate the aiding or abetting of illegal practice by another, the licensed man is suffered to continue."

Danger in Anesthesia

Mr. Berger pointed out that grave danger lies in the administering of local anesthesia by unlicensed dentists.

"The risk to the life and health of the patient in being operated upon by one of these inexperienced, uneducated frauds, posing as a dentist," he continued, "is appalling."

"The law requires that every person practicing dentistry must have displayed by the side of his chair his license and registration, and the public can materially aid in the prosecution of illegal practitioners by calling to the attention of the State Board of Medical Examiners any violation of this law."

In the announcement, Mr. Berger reminded the people that only a duly registered and licensed practitioner is permitted to do dental work of any kind. After going into the history of dentistry, in which he discussed laws that formerly made it possible for blacksmiths and even barbers to extract teeth, the deputy Attorney General said that the most important of all the regulatory measures passed in this state to prevent such dangerous practices was the Act of 1914, which made it possible to prosecute not only the dentists practicing without a license but the legal practitioners who violate the law. As recently as fourteen months ago, he said, a man who had been a bullyhoo with a circus was practicing dentistry, and it required a conviction before the Court of Special Sessions to stop him.

Old Sailor Victimized

To illustrate the unscrupulous methods of some of the dentists, Mr. Berger told of an old sailor, Thomas Cusack, who was attracted by the promising advertisement of a "palace of painless dentistry."

"In the course of the conversation with the operator," Mr. Berger said, "Cusack confided that he had saved $350. He had contracted to have some missing teeth replaced for $150. Immediately it was suggested that a much better job and the use of finer gold could be had for 'a little more money.' Before the old sailor left the place the price of the work had been 'jacked up' to $340.

"The story he told resulted in an investigation with the result that three of the dental establishment's operatives, all of whom were unlicensed, were arrested and the proprietor of the place, who boasts in flamboyant type that he runs the largest dental establishment in the world, lost his license. The operatives were held for trial, but two of them have jumped their bail."

Rye Holds Prisoner As Hunter for Mole

Girl Says Suspect Forced Escort to Flee, Then Made Vain Inspection

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Police here believe they have found Rye's strange hold-up man in Philip R. Fisher, who says he is a special representative of the American Steel Export Company. He was held to-day for trial next week by Police Judge Coward.

Miss Jeanette Zambra, chief complainant against the prisoner, says she was held up Friday night by a tall man, who exhibited a revolver and told her to get into a car. After one glance at the weapon the escort fled.

Then, Miss Zambra says, she was forced to accompany the man to the room where he compelled her to turn down the back of her shirtwaist.

"No, the mole was not there," said the man, whereupon he flourished the revolver and told her to go home.

Several other girls have complained of similar attacks. Their stories all indicated the stranger was insane or had some mysterious motive.

The police say Miss Zambra partly has identified Fisher as the man who pointed a revolver at her. Fisher, however, denies he is guilty of the charge.

Strike of Borden's Clerks

Ends; Wage Increase Given

The 700 Borden's Farm Products Company's clerks, who went out on strike last Monday morning, returned to work yesterday having won their demand for wage increases. They will receive an advance of $3 to $10 over their old salaries. Although the company did not sign any agreement with the union, the officers promised there would be no discrimination against union members. The matter of hours will be settled after a new agreement is arranged with the milk drivers.

Death of Five at Detroit Laid to Over-Ripe Olives

Mother of Two Victims Seriously Ill After Dinner in Fashionable Grosse Pointe Suburb

DETROIT, Oct. 25.—Five persons are dead here to-day following a dinner served in the home of Murray W. Sales, at the social colony of Grosse Pointe, Detroit suburb. Samples of canned food served and suspected of having caused ptomaine poisoning have been sent to the University of Michigan for chemical analysis, but Dr. C. G. Jennings, a local bacteriologist, is of the opinion that the deaths were caused by eating over-ripe olives.

Those dead are A. Ingersoll Lewis, prominent socially and financially; Leonard A. Sales, twelve-year-old son of Murray W. Sales; Miss Frances Sales, twenty-two years old, daughter of Murray W. Sales; Mrs. H. C. Sales, who assisted with the dinner, and Mrs. Murray W. Sales, mother of two of the victims, is reported to be critically ill.

Harry Cumpson, Pianist, in Recital at Aeolian Hall

Harry Cumpson, a pianist, gave a recital yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall before an audience of excellent size. Mr. Cumpson is apparently an excellent musician, with an admirable sense of rhythm, who plays with a hard, brittle tone, and who lacks the softer graces of his art.

His program included the Mozart F major Sonata, the Liszt B major Sonata, three preludes by Rachmaninoff and a group by Palmgren and Moszkowski. He was greeted by his audience with more than ordinary enthusiasm.
